

ST. LUCIA 2013

St. Lucia Distillers was born in 1972 from fusion of two distilleries on the island. Its international recognition is due in large part to Laurie Barnard, director of the distillery for four decades. With its four stills, three pot stills and one column, in addition to their savoir-faire of aging and blending St. Lucia produces a fine collection of traditional rums. St. Lucia 2013 was distilled in a traditional column style and subsequently stored in 1st fill American white oak barrels. The rum is limited to 4,413 bottles.
